Refracting Pacific Canada - RECEPTION
Hall

St John's College Lecture

Repenser le Canada pacifique - RÉCEPTION

For 150 years, migrants from Asia have had a strong presence in Canadian life. Along with First Nations peoples, migrants from Asia have helped create a Pacific Canada that is very different from versions of Canadian history that emphasize trans-Atlantic migration. By engaging with both First Nations communities and European migrants and by connecting to a larger Pacific world, trans-pacific migrants helped forge a unique society in Canada. Come discover a way of understanding our common history that goes beyond the West and transcends region. Join us at a reception jointly hosted by St. John's Graduate College, B.C. Studies, and the Department of History at UBC. Henry Yu, University of British Columbia

Au cours des 150 dernières années, la présence de migrants provenant de l'Asie a profondément marqué l'expérience canadienne. Avec les Premières Nations, ces migrants ont participé à la création d'une société unique au Canada. En prenant en compte l'expérience à la fois des communautés amérindiennes, des migrants européens et des migrants trans-Pacifique, on découvre une histoire du Canada très différente de celle mettant l'accent sur la migration trans-Atlantique. Venez découvrir une nouvelle façon de concevoir notre histoire qui va au-delà des divisions régionales. Joignez-vous également à nous pour une réception parrainée conjointement par St. John's Graduate College, B.C. Studies, et le département d'histoire de UBC. Henry Yu, University of British Columbia
