Eugene A. Forsey Prize in Canadian Labour and Working-Class History: Graduate ($1,000)

The Canadian Committee on Labour History invites submissions for the Eugene A. Forsey Prize for graduate work on Canadian labour and working-class history.

Prizes are awarded annually for the best graduate thesis completed in the past three years. The award is determined by committees established by the executive of the CCLH. In the spirit of the journal Labour/Le Travail, the committees interpret the definition of Canadian labour and working-class history broadly.

Supervisors may nominate one thesis per competition or an author of a thesis may submit a copy. Submissions of both MA and PhD theses are welcome. Theses defended on or after May 1st three years before the year's competition are eligible for consideration in the current competition.

The Prize is supported by an anonymous donor. With the consent of the late Dr. Forsey's family, the CCLH chose to name the prize in his honour because of his pioneering work in the field of Canadian labour history. Dr. Forsey was Research Director of the Canadian Congress of Labour and later the Canadian Labour Congress and also served on the committee that founded Labour/Le Travail.

The deadline for submissions is 1 January 2027.
